Religious, spiritual and cultural identity are often intertwined and can have an unintended impact in the workplace. The intersectionality of these identities may affect many aspects of a lawyer's daily life from diet to hours of availability to area of practice.

Please join the Office of Career Services and the Office of Diversity and Inclusion for a discussion of the ways in which students can raise issues pertaining to religion or spirituality with potential and current employers; and foster awareness and inclusion with respect to religious and spiritual diversity in the workplace.
