Cardozo's National Lawyers Guild and the Floersheimer Center Present the 2021 Manhattan District Attorney Forum

Please join us on Thursday, January 21st, at 7PM EST, for a public forum featuring all eight of the Manhattan District Attorney candidates running in the Democratic Primary. This event is hosted by Cardozo NLG and The Floersheimer Center. Professor Ekow Yankah will moderate the event.

We are proud present this timely opportunity to hear directly from the candidates competing to shape the city's criminal legal system. The event is open to the public and we hope you will spread the word by inviting the students in your groups and clubs---many of whom will be able to vote in this primary.

For some context, after the Mayor, the Manhattan DA is the most powerful elected official in the City. And after 10 years in power Cy Vance is finally stepping down. As voters, we hold the power to elect a candidate who will be the most committed to decarceration of Black and Brown people and hold corrupt police and prosecutors accountable and to employ restorative rather than punitive justice with their prosecutorial policies and discovery tactics.

Equally, this is a historic contest among a diverse group of candidates. Manhattan hasn't had a new DA in over 10 years. Most of the candidates are running on professed "progressive" platforms, seeking to reform the District Attorney's office from the inside. Rather than competing to be the most "tough-on-crime," the candidates for District Attorney are competing to position themselves as the most committed to reducing incarceration and changing the prosecutorial status quo.

While this office has only ever been held by white men, the candidates in this race are a diverse group of individuals and include a Palestinian-American, an Indian-American, and an Iranian American immigrant. Candidates include former public defenders, civil rights attorneys and former prosecutors.

Thank you in advance for helping to publicize this Cardozo-hosted event. We hope to see you on January 21st at 7pm
