Ethics and Government Lawyering in the Age of Trump with Richard Painter

The Jacob Burns Center for Ethics in the Practice of Law invites you to the third event in its Speaker Series on Ethics and Government Lawyering in the Age of Trump. The series probes the ethical challenges confronting government lawyers in the Trump era and features prominent members of former Presidential Administrations and leading scholars of legal ethics.

Richard W. Painter is the S. Walter Richey Professor of Corporate Law at the University of Minnesota Law School. From 2005 to 2007, he was the chief White House ethics lawyer in the Administration of President George W. Bush. His book, Getting the Government America Deserves: How Ethics Reform Can Make a Difference was published by Oxford University Press in January 2009. Painter has written op-eds on government ethics for numerous publications, including The New York Times, The Washington Post and Los Angeles Times, and he has been interviewed several times on government and corporate ethics by national news organizations. Painter is a board member and vice chair of Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington (CREW), which recently filed suit against President Trump for violating the Foreign Emoluments Clause of the U.S. Constitution.
