Miami-Dade Public Defender Internship/Samson Fellowship Info Session

Monday, February 22, 12-1 pm via Zoom

Meet the Miami-Dade Public Defender's Office recruiter and learn about their internship program. Also, learn more about the Cardozo Samson Fellowship, which provides funding for Cardozo's Public Service Summer Stipend participants who secure internships at their office. Former Samson Fellow, Melissa Abramsky '20, will be attending to share how her Samson Fellowship led to her full-time position as a public defender at the Miami-Dade Public Defender's Office.

RSVP on Symplicity by February 21.

If you have questions, please reach out to Alissa Bernstein.

The FAME Center at Cardozo Law presents

Spotlight on Entertainment Law:

Billie Holiday's Legacy Walks the Halls of 55 Fifth

This event is part of Cardozo's Spotlight on Entertainment Law: Inclusion, Integration, Networking
Week taking place the week of February 22, 2021

Monday, February 22 at 6:30 pm

Any time we walk through the 10th and 11th Floors of 55 Fifth Avenue, we walk through musical history. The legendary jazz great, Billie Holiday, recorded for the first time in the home of the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law, formerly the location of Columbia Records. Join us for a fascinating review of the history of the Columbia and Sony recording studios in the 1930s, the discovery of Billie Holiday's recordings at 55 Fifth Avenue and, most importantly, the life, cultural contributions, and enduring legacy of an extraordinary talent.

Trophies for the Empire: The Epic Dispute Between Greece and England Over the Parthenon
Sculptures in the British Museum

Monday, March 1, 2021

6:30 PM - 8 PM

Pending CLE Approval

The Cardozo Arts & Entertainment Law Journal is pleased to present a discussion about Professor David Rudenstine's forthcoming article, Trophies for the Empire: The Epic Dispute Between Greece and England Over the Parthenon Sculptures in the British Museum.

Professor Rudenstine will present his decades-long historical research about the cultural property dispute between Greece and Great Britain over the Parthenon Sculptures taken to London in the early 1800s by the British ambassador, Lord Elgin. In his article, Professor Rudenstine assesses the legality of the taking and argues that, contrary to conventional narrative, there is no evidence that establishes that Ottoman officials gave Elgin prior or subsequent written permission to remove the Parthenon Sculptures from the edifice. Moreover, the British Museum continues to misrepresent the essential facts, and that its misrepresentations are knowing and deliberate.

Distinguished art law practitioners will engage in a conversation with Professor Rudenstine about his research and the legality of the taking of the Elgin Marbles.

This event is co-sponsored by the FAME Center and the Cardozo Art Law Society.

About the Cardozo Arts & Entertainment Law Journal

For nearly four decades, the Cardozo Arts & Entertainment Law Journal (AELJ) is consistently ranked as one of the nation's top journals for topical legal analysis on arts, entertainment, intellectual property, First Amendment, sports, cyberlaw, and media and telecommunications law. AELJ has maintained its reputation for being at the forefront of legal scholarship and has been recognized by legal scholars, academics, practitioners, and the judiciary both in the United States and abroad for its scholarly impact. AELJ publishes three student-edited issues annually. Each spring, AELJ hosts a symposium that attracts scholars from across the country to discuss cutting-edge legal topics.

About the FAME Center at Cardozo Law

The FAME Center at Cardozo Law, through its unique access to companies and professionals throughout the fashion, arts, media and entertainment industries, provides unprecedented training and development opportunities relating to the representation of businesses driven by the creative process. The program teaches students to confront business challenges which, in the era of social media and digital access, are evolving faster than ever before. Through a collaboration among Cardozo's faculty, industry leaders and other institutions, the FAME Center provides unique insights into the intersection of law and business in the fashion, performing and visual arts, entertainment, sports, industrial design, media, and film industries.

The Jacob Burns Center for Ethics in the Practice of Law presents
Should a Lawyer be Disciplined for Lying to the Public on Behalf of a Client?

Reflections on Rules 4.1 and 8.4(c)?

Thursday, Feb. 25, 2021

5:00 - 6:30 pm

Register below. Zoom link will be sent out by noon on the 25th.

Among the many questions raised since the 2020 Election is whether lawyers should be disciplined for knowing misrepresentations to the public they made on behalf of the parties disputing the election. This panel will examine the application of Rules 4.1 and 8.4(c) to such situations, as well as whether rules about lawyer dishonesty need to be revised, given the speed with which such public misrepresentations can spread.

Panelists:

Andrew Kent, Professor of Law and John D. Feerick Research Chair, Fordham University School of Law

Peter Jarvis, Co-Leader, Legal Profession Team, Holland & Knight, LLP

Rebecca Roiphe, Trustee Professor of Law and Co-Dean for Faculty Scholarship, New York Law School

Cardozo Tech Talk: Legal Challenges with Decentralized Finance

Date: Tuesday, March 2, 2021

Time: 7:00 p.m. - 8:30 p.m.

Emerging blockchain-based financial applications and services are growing at a rapid pace. This movement—often referred to as “decentralized finance” or “DeFi”—has exploded over the past year with over $50B in assets currently being locked, deployed, or otherwise interacting with these new (often automated) financial protocols. Cardozo’s latest Tech Talk will explore the legal and regulatory challenges with DeFi and outline how these applications fit within existing regulatory regimes.

How to Become a Great (Startup) Lawyer: Be "Relentlessly Resourceful"

Speakers: Jordan Koss '10, Member and Head of the Startup and VC group, McDonald Hopkins;
Kenneth Rosenzweig, Associate, McDonald Hopkins

Date: Monday, March 1, 2021

Time: 12:00 p.m.

By reading a simple blog post from March 2009, you can learn so much about the world of startup, what it takes to become a great startup lawyer, and even just becoming a great lawyer in general. The post, written by Paul Graham, is so ancient that it shows in the user design, but it is timeless. It focuses on what makes a great co-founder but understanding founders and what makes them go is the hallmark attribute of a great startup lawyer. And, if we can get Meta about it, to become a great lawyer we need to be relentlessly resourceful ourselves. Join this Heyman Speaker Series event to get Meta about the world of startup.

Prior to joining McDonald Hopkins, Jordan Koss worked in the tech startup and M&A groups at Fenwick & West in San Francisco, and in the private equity and M&A groups at Kirkland & Ellis in New York. Kenneth Rosenzweig joined McDonald Hopkins after serving as a corporate associate at Kirkland & Ellis and after spending some time on the business side as the founder of Rowgatta.

Zoom details are available on the registration page and will also be sent by email prior to the event. This event is open only to the Cardozo community.
