The Entrepreneurial Attorney: Key Career-Building Considerations
Cardozo Law Review Panel on Business Development for Attorneys

April 9, 2021

12:00 p.m. - 1:15 p.m. EST

Cardozo Law Review is excited to host a diverse panel of practitioners from various areas within the legal industry for a discussion about business development for attorneys. The panelists will reflect on their own journeys and advise law students and attorneys on how they can help develop their careers by being conscious of business development skills, skills which are often overlooked in the law school curriculum.

We anticipate insight and perspective on a variety of topics, including effective means for bringing in business, how social media has changed the way attorneys seek business, how to build relationships with clients, how young attorneys can maximize their personal skill sets, and a few other topics our panelists will cover relating to business development. Essentially, the main theme the panelists will grapple with is what law students and attorneys should be focusing on to create value, regardless of whether they join an established firm or start their own practice.

Panelists:

Stephanie Everett: President, Lawyerist

Phillip C. Hamilton '09: Partner, Hamilton Clarke, LLP

Moshe Horn '93: Partner, Gitlin, Horn & Van de Kieft LLP

Marc L. Mukasey '93: Partner, Mukasey Frenchman LLP
