Professor Ekow Yankah Discusses the Importance of a Diverse Supreme Court Bench with NBCXL

“Having people with diverse views, histories, experiences; having a public defender, having a black woman, those are views that she's going to bring to that select set of cases that mean so much to our public,” says Yankah.

Cardozo Ranked #7 on Hollywood Reporter's List of Top Law Schools for Entertainment Lawyers

“Through academic coursework, externships, clinics and symposia featuring industry leaders and practitioners, FAME is focused on teaching young lawyers how to counsel creative business leaders,” says Professor Barbara Kolsun, director of The FAME Center.

Professor Deborah Pearlstein, in Just Security, Writes about War Crimes

“International criminal justice is always a heavy lift,” says Pearlstein. “When the alleged perpetrators report up the chain of command to a permanent member of the UN Security Council, the burden is heavier yet.”

Civil Rights Clinic and NYCLU File Lawsuit Challenging Censorship in New York Prisons

“It is, simply put, a history book,” says Professor Betsy Ginsberg, Clinic Director, on the censorship of the Pulitzer-Prize winning “Blood in the Water: The Attica Prison Uprising of 1971 and Its Legacy” in New York State prisons.

Professor Jessica Roth, on ABC News, Speaks about Federal Terror Charges for Brooklyn Subway Shooter

“It’s going to be a challenge to find a fair and impartial jury in this case because it has been so high-profile and it has affected so many people in New York City,” says Roth.
