Do you want to develop your oral advocacy skills as a 1L? Are you interested in criminal or juvenile justice, access to education, or civil rights? Do you want to impress employers? Join us!

Suspension Representation Project (SRP) is an advocacy group that trains law students to represent NYC public school students in suspension hearings. You and a co-advocate will interview clients, conduct cross-examinations, and provide children and their families valuable assistance and support.

All new advocates must attend a training to become eligible to take a case. Cardozo Law's SRP training is this upcoming Wednesday, October 3rd, at 5:30 p.m. in the third-floor lounge. There will be pizza for everyone and we're looking forward to getting to know you all and help you to become amazing advocates! Remember that you must attend a training to take a case.
You may also attend the following training to fulfill that requirement:

Brooklyn Law: Monday, Oct. 1 6:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m. in the student lounge
(250 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn)

We will be discussing our upcoming events, what the organization does, as well as opportunities to get involved.

Upcoming Events and Announcements

Protest speech invokes the First Amendment's values, but not necessarily the First Amendment's protections. Does that change when the President of the United States suggests sports leagues take action in response to protest speech? Should claims of discrimination be afforded more protection by certain sports leagues? Is Football so ingrained in American life that it should be treated as a public space instead of private?

Please join us as we consider the above prompt. The panel will include sports law experts Professor Marc Edelman of the Zicklin School of Business, Professor Mark Conrad of Fordham University, and Anthony Caruso of Norris McLaughlin.

October 4th, 12:00-1:30 P.M., Room 102.
