Innocence Project Frees Wrongfully Imprisoned Man; Immigration Justice Clinic Works to Prevent Deportation

Due to the work of the Innocence Project, Mark Denny was released on December 20 after spending nearly 30 years in jail for a rape and robbery he didn't commit. At the same time, Cardozo's Immigration Justice Clinic is working to prevent Denny from getting deported on the basis of now-vacated invalid convictions.

Cardozo and YU Mourn the Passing of Professor William Schwartz

The Yeshiva University family mourns the passing of our former colleague William Schwartz, who served as Vice President of Academic Affairs at Yeshiva University and held the chair established by the Widgeon Point Charitable Foundation as University Professor at Cardozo School of Law.

Microsoft Will No Longer Require Women to Settle Sexual Harassment Cases Privately; Vice Dean Gilles Comments in Time on Policy Change

Microsoft's announcement that it will no longer require women to settle sexual harassment cases privately makes it one of the first major companies to eliminate what are known as forced arbitration clauses. Vice Dean Gilles comments in Time that she isn't so sure Microsoft's policy change will influence smaller companies.
