2L Info Session: Gearing up for a Postgrad Public Service Job Search Part 2 (Postgrad Fellowships)

Tuesday, March 5, 12-1:15 pm, Room 1147

2Ls-Think you might be interested in pursuing a postgraduate job in public service? It is not too early to start thinking of your postgrad plans, as some application deadlines for postgraduate fellowships and other opportunities will come sooner than you may expect. Join us for Part 2 of a two-part series on all of the incredible opportunities to begin a public service career! We'll focus specifically on postgraduate fellowships in which candidates design their own projects and select a host organization, such as Equal Justice Works Postgraduate Fellowships, Skadden Fellowships, and others. 3Ls are welcome to attend as well; most of the relevant deadlines for fellowships beginning this fall have already passed, but you may be able to apply for fellowships in future years.

Please RSVP on Symplicity.

Are you interested in negotiation, mediation or arbitration?
Do you want to hone your speaking skills?
Do you want to win first place?

Philosophy and Law Society General Body Meeting

3/5/19 -- 12:30pm-1:30pm

Room 423

Philosophy and Law Society

Come join the Philosophy and Law Society at 12:30pm in 423 for some pizza and phi-LAW-sophical discussion!

Matthew Seligman, who teaches Corporations and Contracts, will lead the discussion with this prompt:

"Modern standing doctrine disregards moral beliefs. It holds that plaintiffs cannot sue for 'self-inflicted' injuries, even if one suffers a harm for 'moral' reasons--for example, if someone believes they have a moral obligation to follow the law even if there is no sanction for its violation. Should this be the case? Arguably, this prevents one from challenging unconstitutional laws with no punishment or enforcement mechanism, which seems unjustifiable. It also frames the law around threats of punishment rather than the motivation to follow the law--an impulse, one might think, the law should encourage. This question has arisen in recent constitutional litigation. Should one have the right to challenge the ACA's individual mandate despite it lacking (at present) an enforcement mechanism--as a Texas district court did last December? Should one have the right to challenge the Government's alleged surveillance programs without any showing that you have actually been targeted? Should one's perceived moral obligation to follow the law deprive one of standing to challenge sanctionless but unconstitutional laws?"

Fashion Law Society - Speed Networking Event with Avocate

When: Wednesday, March 6th at 6:30 PM

Where: Dean's Conference Room, Rm 1008

What: Spend a relaxed evening roaming between tables with attorneys from the Avocate* mentor group, introducing students to a wide array of professionals.

Who: This is an immensely useful networking opportunity for students who are (or may be) interested in the fashion law practice area. Students will have the opportunity to rotate through several tables around the room. This event is open to all students from all class years.

Registration is now closed.

If you RSVPed "yes" and realize now that you are unable to attend, please let us know, as we may need to re-arrange some of the tables.

Avocate is a women's mentoring network connecting law students with practicing attorneys. The network is built on the foundation of women supporting other women to build a stronger community. Mentors come from a wide range of backgrounds and industries including practices in fashion, entertainment, hospitality, and art. The group is currently connecting women in New York City and Washington DC with plans to grow into other cities.

5-7 p.m.

Cardozo School of Law
55 Fifth Avenue
New York, NY
Room 1008

Reception to follow.

The Floersheimer Center for Constitutional Democracy, the Cardozo Data Law Initiative, and the students in the Cardozo Data Law Society invite you to a lunch talk:

A Tech Talk with Professor Duncan Hollis (Temple):
The Emergence of Global Cybernorms

Thursday, March 7, 2019
Room 1008
12:00 - 1:30 pm
Lunch served

Duncan B. Hollis, Professor Law at Temple Law School, will discuss his work at the intersections of cybersecurity and international law in conversation with Floersheimer Center Co-Director, Cardozo Professor Deborah Pearlstein.

Part of the conversation will be Professor Hollis' involvement with the Paris Call for Trust and Security, the first global multi-stakeholder document on cybersecurity. Signed by more than 300 governments and companies such as Microsoft, Google, and IBM in addition to numerous NGOs and universities, this document reflects an emerging consensus on the need for global "cybernorms" to ensure the system remains open, stable, and secure.

ACS General Body Meeting

Thursday, March 7th at 12pm
Room 205

The Cardozo American Constitution Society will be hosting its first General Body Meeting on Thursday, March 7th in Room 205.

We will be introducing the e-board, providing an overview of events for the semester, playing a fun game, and providing information about ways to get involved.

Pizza will be served. Hope to see you all there!
