From Murder To Museums: Abraham Lincoln, Adolf Hitler and The Hunt For Nazi Looted Art In America

In their presentation, From Murder To Museums: Abraham Lincoln, Adolf Hitler and the Hunt For Nazi Looted Art in America, Raymond J. Dowd, Partner - Dunnington Bartholow & Miller LLP - NYC, and Samuel A. Blaustein, Partner - Dunnington Bartholow & Miller LLP - NYC, recount how they seized two stolen Schieles after they were spotted at the Salon+Art Show at the Park Avenue Armory in November 2015, leading to international headlines upon their restitution to their clients. The Schieles are now at Christie's with an appellate court blocking the sale.

The presentation traces Abraham Lincoln's idea of taking the profit out of war through the Lieber Code Executive Order 100 of April 1863, to the 1899 and 1907 Hague Conventions, to the Nuremberg Trials, to show that returning the stolen property to Holocaust victims was an American idea.

The attorneys discuss how 1. Confiscatory US tax laws, 2. A fair market value deduction for artworks donated to museums, and 3. An unwillingness of museums to look gift horses in the mouth led to the current situation of US museums having to deal with large inventories of unprovenanced works that left Europe after 1933 but were created prior to 1946.

This confluence of circumstances has led to history's greatest robbery being concealed by history's greatest murder.

#MeToo and the Legal Profession Conference

Nov. 13th, 9:00 - 12:30 pm

Reception and check-in at 8:45 am

Jacob Burns Moot Court Room

CLE Credit available

Presented by the Jacob Burns Center for Ethics in the Practice of Law at Cardozo and the Cardozo Women's Law Initiative.

The #MeToo Movement, now a year old, has placed a spotlight on the structures in business, education, government, and the legal profession that allow those in power to abuse their authority. This conference will focus on the intersection of the #MeToo Movement and the legal profession, and the keynote will be given by Dean Melanie Leslie on #MeToo and the responsibility of non-profit boards.

Following Dean Leslie's address, two panels, moderated by Professor Jessica Roth and Professor Anthony Sebok, will examine harassment within the legal profession and options for lawyers whose clients have been accused of misconduct or abuse of power.

Panelists:

- Hon. Lorna Schofield, U.S. District Judge, Southern District of New York
- Professor Stephen Gillers, NYU Law School
- Gabrielle Tenzer of Kaplan Hecker & Fink
- Cara Greene of Outten & Golden

- Ally Coll Steele, formerly of Boies Schiller and founder of The Purple Campaign

FREE SPEECH ON CAMPUS

When: Wednesday, November 14th

Where: Room 304

Time: 12:00 - 1:30 P.M.

Pizza will be served!

Do safe spaces belong on the campus, and to what extent are they compatible with the values underlying the first amendment? Should controversial speakers be granted the sort of protections traditionally afforded when the government is the speech-controlling entity? As de-platforming movements grow, what role do free speech values play in the university campus. Join the Cardozo Arts and Entertainment Law Journal and the Cardozo Federalist Society as we explore this controversy.

To End a Presidency:

A Book Talk and Discussion with Joshua Matz and Professor Kate Shaw

Tuesday, Nov. 13, 2018, 12:30 - 1:30pm, Room 1008

Lunch will be served, RSVPs not required

Please join The Floersheimer Center for a book talk and discussion of the history, future, and proper role of presidential impeachment in the United States. Professor Kate Shaw will speak with Joshua Matz about his new book (written with Harvard Law Professor Laurence Tribe),

To End a Presidency: The Power of Impeachment, which provides a measured guide to prior impeachment efforts and argues that we must re-think impeachment as an option for the twenty-first century.

Joshua Matz is a widely published constitutional scholar and former clerk for Justice Anthony Kennedy. He is the author of 2014's award-winning Uncertain Justice: The Roberts Court and the Constitution, also with Tribe.

Joshua is of counsel at Kaplan Hecker & Fink LLP and Gupta Wessler PLLC. In addition to his commercial work in trial and appellate litigation, he also maintains a diverse civil rights practice and has litigated questions relating to LGBTQ rights, religious liberty, freedom of speech, defamation liability, the Second Amendment, and the Emoluments Clause.

Since 2017, Joshua has also published the legal blog Take Care, which provides real-time coverage and analysis of legal developments in the current administration.
