Innocence Project Exonerates Texas Woman Who Was Imprisoned For 20 Years For Crime That Never Happened

“It’s just astonishing to think how long everybody’s been working on this case, even when it became clear so early on that you did not commit this crime,” said Professor Barry Scheck, co-founder of the Innocence Project, at a news conference hosted at Cardozo.

Professor Andrea Schneider Speaks to Los Angeles Times on Why Writers and Actors Strikes Have No End In Sight

“There has to be a mutually hurting stalemate before you can get the parties to the table,” Schneider said. “But in this case, the studios seem willing to endure some financial pain.”

Professor Michael Pollack Publishes Op-Ed in Law360 on Obligations NYC Should Have Regarding Sidewalks

“Advancing Council member Tiffany Cabán's proposal for public snow removal on city sidewalks, containerizing sidewalk trash and streamlining sidewalk permitting are all good, doable next steps,” Pollack wrote. “They would improve the quality of life for millions of New Yorkers and countless businesses, and they would show that the Adams administration is serious about preserving and protecting the sidewalks for all of us.”
