CAMPUS NEWS

Professor Jessica Roth is a Guest on CBS Radio

Professor Jessica Roth was a guest on CBS Radio to discuss the impeachment inquiry. She expects the President to cite executive privilege regarding previous actions. "The fact that the White House has released so much information on these matters diminishes the argument that they would make that they need to keep the rest of the information confidential," Roth said.

Professor Kate Shaw Appears on This Week to Discuss Impeachment

Professor Kate Shaw told This Week with George Stephanopoulos, "I think President Trump would clearly like this debate to be framed in those terms-was there a quid pro quo-and he hopes that the answer is that no evidence will emerge to establish a quid pro quo...I think that sort of fundamentally misunderstands the nature of impeachment."

Kukin Program Students Win Writing Competitions

Cardozo student Ariel Cox's paper, written for the ADR Writing Seminar, Serve & Protect, Honor & Respect: Restoring the Victims and Rebuilding Police and Community Ties After Racially Charged Civilian-Police Incidents, won an Honorable Mention (2nd place) in the Boskey ADR Writing Competition sponsored by the ABA's Section on Dispute Resolution. Rachel Schwartzman and Ahdieh Alipour Herisis, LL.M. '19, are winners of the 2019 NYSBA-ACCTM National ADR Law Student Writing Competition.

Bet Tzedek Clinic Students Hold Advanced Directives Pop-up Clinic

On Monday, October 7, the students in the Bet Tzedek Civil Litigation Clinic held an Advanced Directives Pop-Up Clinic for constituents from New York State Assemblyman Al Taylor's Northern Manhattan district. 2L students Tiffany Cheung and Tyler Dixon gave power point presentations on Health Care Proxies and Powers of Attorney, respectively, followed by a Q and A with the audience.

Cardozo's LL.M. Program Featured in LL.M. Guide

Cardozo's LL.M. program was featured in LL.M. Guide. Erica Silbiger, Director of Admissions for the program, said, "No two people are the same in this city. Being around and learning about these different cultures and environments gives students a learning experience they can't get anywhere else."
