Data Protection in the Global Marketplace

Data protection and cybersecurity concerns are ever-present challenges to companies and firms globally. Heightening this is the continual evolution of data protection as a field of law as government and regulators race to keep abreast of technology and the ubiquitous use of personal data in commerce, including fashion retail. This panel will focus on these developments and address how companies can comply when doing business globally and how to work with regulators across various, often competing, legal regimes.
