Professor Kate Shaw Talks to ABC News About Lawsuits Filed in Texas

"In some ways the identity of these first plaintiffs highlights the absurdity of the law," Shaw says. "No connection to the issue, no connection to the parties, no connection - as far as we can tell from the complaints - to Texas, at all. And yet, they may well have the ability, the way the law is drafted, to go to court and to have the courts actually hear their case."
