The Cardozo/Google Project for Patent Diversity is Working to Narrow the Patent Gap; Professor Curtis Quoted in Bloomberg

Less than 19 percent of patents issued by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office had a female inventor listed, says an article in Bloomberg. In February, Google partnered with Cardozo Law School at Yeshiva University in New York to initiate a collaborative project designed to increase the number of U.S. patents issued to women and minorities. “The patent gap is most severe for the minority groups, especially African- Americans and Hispanic women,” said Jeanne Curtis, director of the Cardozo/Google Project for Patent Diversity.

Bet Tzedek Clinic's Class Action Settlement Restores Rent Freeze Benefits to up to 20,000 Elderly and Lower-Income NYC Tenants

New York City’s Rent Freeze Program (RFP) freezes the rents paid by lower-income elderly and disabled rent-regulated tenants—in many cases for decades—and provides landlords with tax credits to cover the portion of the legal regulated rent not being paid by the tenant. Tenants must renew their RFP benefits every two years, but some eligible tenants may be unable to complete the renewal process because of their disabilities. When this happened, Cardozo Law's Bet Tzedek Clinic stepped in to help.

In Bloomberg, Professor Zelinsky says NY State's Lawsuit Over Cap on Federal Tax Deduction Has Little Chance of Success

Professor Ed Zelinsky told Bloomberg that a lawsuit by four states over a new $10,000 cap federal tax deduction has little chance of success. In Law360 and Forbes, he said a federal tax case on a tax provision exempting clergy housing is both bad policy and constitutional.

Professor Buccafusco Comments on Monkey Selfie Case in Bloomberg Law

A case involving a monkey who took a selfie, and the question of the monkey's rights over that photo, will continue as a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit asked the full court to consider rehearing the case.
